The Department of Surgery of New York Hospital Queens continues to expand the clinical leadership team, providing greater access to the latest cancer treatment and critical care services to physicians who send or treat their most complex patient cases here. Michael A. Coomaraswamy, M.D., is a core member of this team.

Board certified in General Surgery, Dr. Coomaraswamy joined CRT Surgical Associates, the surgical services group at NYHQ, from Forest Hills Hospital, where he was Attending Surgeon and Director, Head and Neck Surgery. He is also an Assistant Clinical Professor of Surgery at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine.

A graduate of the Western Washington University in Bellingham Washington, Dr. Coomaraswamy received his medical degree from the Albert Einstein College of Medicine. His postgraduate training includes a residency in surgery at Montefiore Medical Center, where he was Chief Resident, as well as approved fellowship training in head and neck surgical oncology.

He holds extensive critical care and trauma experience and is certified in Advanced Trauma Life Support. His specialization in head and neck cancers includes the thyroid and salivary gland, as well as endocrine surgery. His publications include such journals as Journal of Trauma, and the Journal of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery.

If you would like to meet Dr. Coomaraswamy and discuss a case, please contact him at 718-670-1097 or mac9309@nyp.org.
