Bayside Primary Care Fact Sheet for Physicians and Patients

Through private physician practices and more than two dozen community medicine facilities, New York Hospital Queens continues the initiative to increase access to primary care and to provide easy access to specialty services across the borough.

In Bayside, the Bayside Primary Care practice (formerly known as Barra, Coman, Rawlings), with six primary care physicians, is now a member of the New York Hospital Queens physician group, New York Queens Medicine & Surgery, P.C. A cardiologist, specializing in non-invasive procedures, also sees patients at this location.

These talented physicians will continue to provide care to members of our community, near where they live and work. A few of these physicians have been providing high quality care for our community for more than 30 years!

New York Hospital Queens is proud to be associated with these expert physicians. We support their dedication and commitment to protect and promote the health of our Bayside community.

What is a Primary Care Physician?

A primary care physician is your main health care provider and may also be referred to as an internist, general physician or family practitioner. You can expect this physician to provide preventative care and long-term treatment of many medical conditions.

At different phases in your life, you may choose to see a physician who can meet your healthcare needs at a particular age, such as a pediatrician, family practitioner or geriatrician.

Who can receive treatment at Bayside Primary Care?

Bayside Primary Care provides care for adolescents, adults and geriatrics.

OUR FOCUS

Physicians at Bayside Primary Care have a focus on health and wellness, promoting lifestyle changes to improve an individual's physical and overall well-being. These physicians can provide treatment for a variety of conditions including obesity, diabetes, hypertension, diseases of the heart, lungs and kidneys, incontinence and muscular skeletal issues
